Dear Sirs:- Following is a speech made by Clarence Manion, which in my opinion, is the most concise and forceful argument against the infamous Taft-Hartley bills I have ever come across.

"In reality the open shop only means the open door through which the union man goes out and the non-union man comes in to take his place. The open shop furnishes, and always has furnished, the best possible means of destroying the organization of men. The closed shops are the only sure protection for the trade agreements and the defenses of the individual. The masters naturally discourage those who have been most active in the union, who interfere the most with his business, who are ever agitating for higher wages, better conditions and shorter hours. He naturally employs those who are most complaisant, those who cannot afford to lose their jobs, those whom he can bring to be dependent on his will. The open shop means uncertainties, anxieties; it is a constant menace to the union man's interest. He understands that his job is dependent upon his lack of interest in the union; men who belong to the unions and accept their responsibilities, cannot be persuaded to pay dues and make sacrifices for the benefit of the non-union men who work by their sides and who are always the first to claim and receive the benefits of every struggle made by the union, benefits they receive without danger, without labor and without cost. To prevent trade unionism from being conquered in detail, to keep its members from being thrown out through the open door, to maintain the best conditions in shop and mill and factory and strive for others better still, to save

Dear Mr. Green:-

Would you please send me two or three copies of the Taft--Hartly Labor bill. I want a copy for myself and a copy for a couple of my friends. I am not in favor of the bill. I think it will ruin labor unions if enforced. I believ some kind of good labor laws are needed but outlawing the closed shop and check off will ruin labor unions. I thank you in advance for your kindness.

I have noted with interest your campaign against the Taft-Hartley Bill. However, I have experienced much difficulty in trying to find out just what the conditions of this bill encompass. If you have any literature pertaining to this legislation, I would appreciate receiving same. However, what I am most interested in is a copy of the Bill itself.

Dear Sirs:

The Debate Question for 1947-48 High School Debating is:- Resolved: That the Federal Gov't should require arbitration of Labor Disputes in all basic American Industries.

Although High School Debating probably has never directly influenced legislation it has helped many to take a definate stand on muchly talked issues (Labor being included.)

My father has been a member of the AFL for quite some time, belonging to the Union of Railroad Clerks of Kansas City - Union 721.

Because my father and all my relatives have been of the laboring class & am very anxious to defend their interests. The Taft-Hartley Bill now before Congress will have a big influence on Labors future. I would appreciate it very much, therefore, if you would send me all the pamphlets and information possible on the Taft-Hartley Bill and also other information pertenent to next years Debate Question.

Thank you very much!!

Dear Sir & Bro.:-

The licensed personnel of the Panama Canal Tugs requested the Seamans Service Certificate be issued to them by the Maritime Commission for their service on these tugs which consisted of working in and out of the Panama Canal entrances,passing thru the mine fields sometimes as much as four time in one watch,in doing this one of the tugs was blown up and eight of the crew was killed including the Captain who was one of our memebrs.

The Maritime Commission allowed these certificates and some were issued,but thru someones efforts the words excepting the Panama Canal was inserted into Public Law #87 also that these tugs are not documented vessels,the ones issued were cancelled and recalled. The Army Transport services were issued these certificates not withstanding the face that they are not documented vessels.

Many of these men here on the Canal tried to get into the armed forces but were told by the Panama Canal Officials that ~~thor~~ their services were much more valuable to the Goverenment by staying on the Panama Canal Tugs and if they resigned for any reason they would be given,Objections to reemployment,

Please see just what can be done regarding the above as this Local feels that the men are entitled to these Certificates.

JUN 30 1947

Dear Mr. Green:

More years ago than I like to recall at present writing, I found myself, with less than two hours on the payroll of the concerned company, in somewhat serious difficulties with a foreman. He was of the old school, and it was evidently his intention to instruct me in the art of mixing mortar with his fists. I resented his form of instruction. Being much younger then, I foolishly stood over him after knocking him to the ground, allowing him to regain his feet before renewing hostilities. I succeeded in upsetting him three times before the fortunes of combat shifted somewhat to his favor. Stepping back from a blow, I tripped and fell.

He stooped quickly and picked a broken brick from the ground.

Struggling to regain my feet, I became aware my right hand was buried in unslacked, dry lime spilled beside the mortar-box. My fist closed on a handful.

Regaining my feet before he was able to bring the brick into play, I rushed the man. Keeping my fist closed until it was within inches of his face, I released the handful of lime into his eyes and mouth. The odds were evened, somewhat.

The lesson learned on this forenoon so long ago remains indelibly imprinted. It is simply, IT MAY BECOME NECESSARY TO FIGHT WITH WEAPONS OF THE ENEMY'S CHOOSING.

The congress of the United States seems to have picked up a brick.

We, of organized labor, are facing many legalities as of three, p. m. this date, the end result of which are beyond the power of any one man, or group of men, to forsee.

We know the closed shop is out. How the "union shop" clause will be manipulated by some anti-labor employers we have had many previews of.

It is within the power of management to hire who they see fit, and under certain, and many circumstances, local unions will have no choice but to accept these men for membership, often displacing competent and sincere, long term members and supporters of organized labor.

The press of circumstances during the war brought many incompetent workmen into craft unions as journeymen. This was an inevitibility. Is it not possible at this time to inaugurate a system of examinations, more stringent and selective than has heretofore been in force, covering potential membership. Examinations for both ability and aptitude, especially when dealing with doubtful applicants. (Taft and Hartley overlooked this).

For a member even suspected of Communistic thinking to hold office in a labor organization is sufficient reason to render null and void the bargaining rights of the entire organization. Therefore, to protect our interests, every new applicant for membership should be subjected to the most careful scrutiny. If his employment, and subsequent membership in the A. F. of L. displaced, or prevented the employment of a member in good standing, or he was an out and out "scab," the likelihood of his being, or becoming, communistic would seem worthy of some serious consideration. The word, "communist" has taken on many meanings it is doubtful if Webster ever heard of when he attempted to define it.

A few more words on the pronoun, "I."

A large portion of my income, at present, is derived from writing, (free lance) but I have long been within the fold of the A. F. of L. First the Teamsters, then Machinists, (I. A. of M.) and now the B.S.E.I.U. (Special Officer, Local 193) and while it may seem presumptious for a mere rank-and-file member to even make a suggestion, as your staff is no doubt able to find all the loop-holes in the recently enacted legislation, on the odd chance there is something here that might be overlooked, or that might prove the means of turning some of the measures, if not strictly to benefit us, at least into two-edged swords, I submit the above.

I have personally witnessed much progress and improvement in the position of the working man, and just as personally taken part in much union activity, not only in an effort to gain ground in organizational endevours, but to consolidate positions and conditions won, often the hard way.

Sincerely and fraternally,

M. R. Harry

Dear President Green:

The Taft-Hartley bill has now become the "Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947". It is a good time to recall, as Professor Benjamin Selekman has said, that a mature person faces the facts of life as something to be handled rather than something to be hated.

In all the conflict of discussion, one basic fact stood firm -- indeed was underscored: That the solid core of American management and labor agree in preferring industrial self-government with freedom of voluntary agreement to control by government decree or by non-voluntary arbitration or even by the economic compulsion of a strike or lockout.

This basic choice is the characteristic feature of the democratic experiment that lies ahead of us. The endurance of western civilization probably depends upon the degree of our success. We can succeed only by the unswerving loyalty of responsible management and labor to this fundamental choice.

I suggest that this choice means that not only strikes and lockouts but also the resort to government interposition under the expanded jurisdiction of the NLRB and its General Counsel, or any other form of imposed settlement, must be thought of by both labor and management as a last resort.

Outside of the field of the expanded jurisdiction of the NLRB and its General Counsel, and perhaps even within that field, there are doubtless questions which mustbe tested in the courts. But it should be realized that every time a conference at the bargaining table is broken up for recourse to an imposed settlement of any form, it means a failure of industrial self-government in that particular case. Loyalty to industrial self-government demands, therefore, the firm determination of management and labor to avoid all such recourse by resourceful and courageous bargaining.

Will you please let me know, either by telegram or by a prompt reply in a letter, whether you agree with these suggestions? I am addressing thisinquiry to each of the former members of the National War Labor Board and also to each of the delegates, alternate delegates and advisors of the President's National Labor-Management Conference of 1945.

Cordially yours,

William H.
