BINGHAM W. MATHIAS

SUMMARY OF REPORT OF MINORITY OF HOUSE LABOR COMMITTEE ON HR 3020

HR. R. 3020 is a "bill based upon hate. It is a product of men who are determined to shackle labor at all costs. This determination to place a section of our population in bondage does not countx the costx in terms of division and disunity, in terms of lasting bitterness among our working people, in terms of a loss of sense of political obligation which comes into being when citizens and taxpayers come to feel that the Government is an instrumentality for repressing them and for xxx aiding their employers in repressing them.x The fortunes of political warfare do not destroy the fundamental principle that this is a government for all the people, and that a true democracy means xxxx equal justice under the law."

"We are convinced that xxxxx the legisxxlation now under consideration represents the views of the most anti-labor section of American employers. It is reactionary in the literal sense of the term, for it would turn the clock back to the days when the government and xx the instrumentalities of government were the staunchest allies of employers in breaking the organizations of working men and women and of penalizing their concerted activities.....

"If this bill were enacted into law those covered by this bill would enjoy fewer rights than workers enjoyed 50 or 60 years ago. This bill does not merely turn the clock back by removing protections against interference with the organizational process; it carefully fashions new types of restrictions that were non-existent 50 years ago.x

"The specific anti-labor contribution of the new bill is the establishment of government power in support of the employer through restraints upon strikes, through limitations upon collective bargaining, through discouragement of self-organization, and through a far-reaching and intricate series of controls over the internal affairs of unions.

"What is proposed in HR 3020 is the refashioning of a free labor movement into a Labor Front controlled, operated and regulated by governmen t in the interest of employers."

"The one-sided and unfair character of the bill fully reflects the one-sided character of the hearings which were held... The bill now before us embodies the proposals of employers whose viewpoints and whose complaints have dominated the hearings. This bill ... speaks with the voice and legislates the proposals of the employers in this country who have played a most shameful role in attacking labor unions and who are most prominently identified with violations of labor laws...

"In striking contrast to the tenderness shown by the Committee for witnesses with a demonstrated bias against collective bargaining and fair dealing toward unions, labor's officials were subjected toxinsults and harassment which must bring a blush of shame to any fair-minded citizen...

"We cannot condemn strongly enough what can only have been a deliberate design to use the hearings for the purpose of presenting to the public a completely one-sided and distorted picture of the present state of labor-management relations..."

The Minority Report criticizes HR 3020 for its removal of ~~x~~ existing Wagner Act protections; its attacks upon the right to picket and strike; its attack upon self-organization and the collective bargaining process; andf for "undermining" labor organizations.

"There can be no question," the Minority Report says, "but that the entire code for the regulation of labor organizations contained in this bill amounts in effect to a form of Federal incorporation. Employers have frequently objected to Federal incorporation on the ground that it would arm the state with a tremendous and improper power over the internal affairs of their businesses. Yet this committee seeks to impose upon labor organizations a federalized code of regulation which ~~xxxxxxxxx~~ xembodies allt the evils of supervision and control implicit in a federal incorporation program."

"The contrest in attitudes of the Republican leadership ~~xxxx~~ toward price control and labor control is significant not merely because it demonstrates a fundamental inconsistency toward federal regulation. It is significant because the destruction of OPA in itself is the greatest single factor contributing to current labor unrest. The destruction of OPA has spelled increased prices and profits. The current attack upon labor emmbodied in HR 3020 is a continuation of a drive for profits in another form. It seeks to weaken labor organizations so as to render them powerless to make effective protest against the rising cost of living, against the increasing ~~xxxxxxx~~ disparkity between profits and take-home pay."

Taft-Hartley Bill's Provisions Listed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Following are the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act which went into effect today:

CLOSED SHOP

From now on, it is an "unfair labor practice" for an employer to make any agreement to discriminate in favor of union members when hiring new workers.

This bans the signing or renewing of closed shop contracts (under which only union men are hired and all non-union men are fired). It bans "preferential hiring" contracts (under which union men are hired if available). It appears to ban contracts for all hiring to be done through union hiring halls.

UNION SHOP

It is also "unfair" for an employer to make a union shop or maintenance-of-membership agreement unless the majority of all the employees have voted their approval.

(In a union shop the employer can hire non-union people, but then they have to join the union to keep their job. Maintenance-of-membership means nobody has to join the union, but those who do join must stay members or get fired.)

CONTRACT VIOLATIONS

The Federal courts are thrown open to suits against either unions or employers for breach of contract.

JURISDICTIONAL STRIKES

These are "unlawful," and the employer can sue the union and collect damages.

Also they are "unfair," and can be stopped by the National Labor Relations Board, first by getting a quick court injunction and then by a board order.

Further, the board is given the job of settling the dispute between unions which led to the strike.

(A jurisdictional strike usually results from an argument between different unions over whose members shall handle certain work.)

Other "unlawful" strikes and boycotts—these include any union attempt to force one employer not to deal with another; a strike or boycott to force self-employed persons to join a union, and a strike to force an employer to recognize one union when another union has been certified as the bargaining representative by the NLRB.

All these things are called both "unlawful" and "unfair" and can bring damage suits and NLRB action in the same way as a jurisdictional strike.

POLITICAL ACTIVITY

Unions and corporations are forbidden to make either contributions or "expenditures" in elections for Federal officials. They can be fined $5000 and their officers can be fined $1000 and given a year in prison.

NATIONAL EMERGENCIES

The President can block any big strike that imperils the national health or safety by getting a court injunction good for 80 days.

WELFARE FUNDS

Any new ones must meet certain requirements. For example, they must be administered equally by the employer and union. A violation can bring a $10,000 fine and a year in prison to both the employer and the union officials.

DUES CHECKOFF

Under future contracts, the payroll deduction method of collecting union dues can be used only in cases where the employee gives written permission. The penalty on the employer and union officials can be as high as $10,000 and a year in prison.

(Present contracts containing welfare fund and dues checkoff provisions may run until their expiration or until sext July 1, whichever date comes first.)

COOLING-OFF PERIOD

It is "unfair" for a union or employer to end or change the terms of an existing contract without giving a 60-day notice to the other party. Employees who strike during the 60 days will lose their Wagner Act rights.

SUPERVISORS

They no longer have any Wagner Act rights because they aren't considered "employees" now. Supervisory employees can belong to unions, but it is no longer "unfair" for an employer to refuse to bargain with them.

As for employers, charges of unfair practices can be filed by those unions which qualify to use the NLRB's services, or they can be filed by an individual who considers himself a victim of an unfair practice.

EMPLOYERS

Employers are subject to a few new wrinkles, too. Unions can haul them into court for breach of contract. Corporations, like unions, are curbed in making political "expenditures," though the exact meaning of that term will probably have to be settled in court.

GOVERNMENT

The new law makes these important changes in government machinery:

1. Enlarges the NLRB from three to five members, makes it almost purely a labor court, and puts the prosecution and investigation of cases in the hands of the NLRB general counsel, who will operate practically as an independent agency.

2. Divorces the Conciliation Service from the Labor Department and gives it a new name, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

3. Sets up a joint congressional labor study committee to keep watch on federal labor laws and recommend changes as necessary.

of the nation, may take re-newed hope from the experience of the Taft-Hartley law with his effort.

GOOD WILL—

"With good will on both sides of the bargaining table, with a desire to make the good provisions of this measure work for industrial peace and in the public interest, let us all devote ourselves to the great task of production, that we may continue building a better standard of living for all."

The Aluminum Company of America strike by 7000 United Auto Workers members ended five minutes before the Taft-Hartley Act became effective and provides a 10-cent blanket raise among other clauses.

In addition to a five-cents-an-hour wage boost, North America's contract carries a "no penalty" clause by which the company agrees not to sue local or international unions and their officers in case of "wildcat" strikes or work stoppages, provided the union seeks to keep members working.

CALLED VICTORY—

Van de Kamp's president, L. L. Frank, declared withdrawal of pickets was a victory for the company in its fight to prevent "employees from being forced in union membership against their will."

The Teamsters Union announced it would continue to boycott Van de Kamp's and will file suit under the Taft-Hartley Act, charging unfair practices. A spokesman said the bakery company has refused to bargain collectively, which he charged is a violation of the new law.

Among the agreements reached by United Electrical Workers, one of the most important is that with the Radio Corporation of America, providing a union shop agreement for one year and a five-cents-an-hour pay boost for the next two years. The contract, signed in Hollywood, is of national scope and covers RCA's plants in Camden, N. J., Lancaster, Pa., and Pulaski, Va., as well.

Hydril's contract with Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers boosts wages 11½ cents an hour and fixes a 10-cent-an-hour night differential.

Taft Queried on GOP Clubs

CLEVELAND, Aug. 22 —(AP)— Democratic State Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum today made public a letter to United States Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican), Ohio, inquiring whether incorporated political clubs violate the Taft-Hartley Labor Act by engaging in "normal political activities."

Naming several Republican ward clubs which he said were Ohio corporations, Metzenbaum quoted a section of the Taft-Hartley Act to the effect it was unlawful "for any corporation whatever" to "make a contribution or expenditure" in connection with presidential and congressional elections, primaries, political conventions or caucuses.

Metzenbaum asked Taft to advise him "whether or not the aforementioned Republican organizations and their officers are subject to prosecution under the Taft-Hartley Act for carrying on their normal political activities?"

29 Congressmen Say: Hartley Bill Is A New Guarantee of Industrial Slavery

1. The employer is granted new rights and powers to destroy labor and to substitute individual bargaining for collective bargaining.

2. The employer is given the right to bring anti-trust actions against his employes, to institute criminal prosecutions against them, to sue them for treble damages and to obtain ex parte injunctions without a hearing against them. But the employer's violation of the law is subject merely to a cease and desist order issued after administrative hearing and court review.

3. The employer is granted the right to compel employes to accept a wage cut through forced labor for indefinite periods of time.

4. The employer receives the right to break strikes caused by his own illegal conduct.

5. The employer is granted the right to obtain injunctions against strikes which have been legal for the past 50 years.

6. The employer retains the right to bargain through an employers' association but bargaining through national unions is outlawed.

7. The employer is granted the right to disregard the bargaining agent and to play employes against each other.

8. The employer is granted the right to sit at both sides of the bargaining table by establishing company unions.

9. The employer is granted the right to disregard the bargaining agent and to refuse to bargain about such matters as health and welfare plans, apprentice training programs and speed-up.

10. The employer is given the right to break a strike for recognition even though the union represents an overwhelming majority of the employes.

11. The employer is given the right to outlaw and to crush any strike by hiring strikebreakers even though the strike is caused by his own misconduct.

12. The employer is given the right to cooperate with anti-labor employers in order to destroy unions.

13. The employer is given the right to lockout and blacklist office clerks if they join a union.

14. The employer is given the right to invoke injunctions, treble damage suits and criminal penalties against the employes in one department if they strike against a wage cut in another department.

15. The employer is given the right to instigate criminal prosecutions against individuals who exercise the right to picket.

16. The employer is given the right to prevent the designation of a bargaining agent for a period of years.

17. Spies may be planted in the union ranks by the employer and the union is powerless to expel them.

18. The employer is given the right to grant or deny union security as he wishes; he is not required even to discuss it with the union and he may crush a strike or a threat of strike to obtain it.

19. The employer is given the right to crush any strike when a collective bargaining contract exists even if the strike is caused by an issue not covered by the contract.

20. The employer is given the power to obtain from the government a death warrant for the union of his employes.

Dear Sir and Brother:-

Several weeks ago we received from your office, a copy of "Roll Call Votes - Taft-Hartley Act", along with a copy of the Taft-Hartley Law.

We have found the "Roll Call Votes" very interesting and believe this would be very influential to members of organized labor when they again go to the polls, if this information were known by them.

Therefore, I wonder if it would be possible to obtain extra copies of this Roll Call for distribution to our affiliated Local Unions. We would need in the neighborhood of fifty (50) additional copies.

Would you please advise me if these are available from your office, and if so would you send me the required number of copies. If there is any charge, please include statement to cover cost, and a check will be sent you.

Hoping to hear from you at an early date, and with very best wishes, I remain

TAFT - HARTLEY LAW

TO ALL LOCAL UNIONS
IN THE UNITED STATES.

August 21, 1947

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Local unions are asking me many questions about the Taft-Hartley law.

I will try, to the best of my ability, to give the local unions the information they need to function under this law.

To reiterate what I have already written to our local unions about the Taft-Hartley law:

Local unions that have agreements signed prior to August 22nd of this year will not have to worry very much about the Taft-Hartley law until the time arrives for renewing thir agreements next year.

However, in the months ahead of us, we must prepare ourselves to comply with the requirements of the law in order to petition the National Labor Relations Board for union shop elections when our agreements come up for renewal next year.

At the proper time I will send each local union a copy of the form that has to be filed with the Office for the Registration of Labor Organizations, United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

I will also send you forms prepared by our Research Department in Washington for making a financial report, which has to be filed with the registration form. I think it will be time enough for most of our local unions in the United States to register with the Office for the Registration of Labor Organizations in January, 1948.

RECEIVED AUG 25 1947

Your local will also have to file your local by-laws when you register with the Office for the Registration of Labor Organizations. That is why I am urging all local unions to draft by-laws now.

I want to urge every local union to look to our International Office for guidance in functioning under this law.

You may read in the papers that some international unions are going to "by-pass" the law and ignore the National Labor Relations Board and are going to deal directly with their employers. Of course, an international union may follow such a course if it wishes to do so.

However, the only way our union can obtain an enforceable union shop agreement under the Taft-Hartley law is to comply with the provisions of the law and ask for an election by the National Labor Relations Board and have the majority of the workers in our bargaining units vote for a union shop agreement.

I am sure the members of our local unions will be interested to learn that the State of New Hampshire recently passed a law, requiring elections before union shop agreements can be signed. The members of the two International Unions in the plant of the Groveton Paper Company, Groveton, New Hampshire, have just voted in such an election, and voted for a union shop by 543 for, to 6 against. That is the way we shall have to get our union shop agreements under the Taft-Hartley law.

It is going to mean more work for us, but we can get union shop agreements under the Taft-Hartley law. Our members are not going to vote to go back to the open shop. This vote at Groveton shows how our members will vote when elections are held for the signing of union shop agreements under the Taft-Hartley law.

Fraternally yours,

John P. Burke

Dear Mr. Brady:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of August 16. It will be called to Mr. Smathers' attention upon his return to the office early in September.

I regret that you have the impression that Mr. Smathers is opposed to organized labor for I know that such is not the case. It seems to me that he demonstrated that fact when he voted against the original Hartley Bill, a measure which would have deprived labor of its just and hard won rights. He voted against that bill although he knew his vote would be unpopular with the general public.

Many people, both labor and management, do not realize that the Senate labor bill, which was adopted almost intact by the Congress in preference to the bill introduced by Congressman Hartley, is not the harsh and unjust measure which the Hartley Bill was. However, as time goes on I am sure that more and more people will realize that fact and will see that the present law does not work the great hardship on organized labor which so many people apparently think it will.

Dear Sir:

I am in receipt of your letter of August 25, addressed to President Green and which has been referred to me during Mr. Green's absence.

I am sure Mr. Green would be pleased to know of your attitude in regard to Labor, and as I keep the records of Members of Congress in my office and compile them, I can give you the information you request from Mr. Green.

I am sending you a copy of the Taft-Hartley Act, five pamphlets and summary analyzing it, compiled by the American Federation of Labor, the action taken at a meeting of all our international and national organizations, held in the Washington Hotel on July 9, and a roll call vote which shows the way every Senator and Representative voted in regard to the Taft-Hartley Bill. There were three votes in each House and you will note that while Congressman Smathers did vote against the original Hartley Bill, he voted for the Conference Report and with the Republicans to pass it over the veto of President Truman.

I think if you will peruse the pamphlets I have sent you analyzing this bill that you will agree with us that the statement contained in the last paragraph of the letter addressed to you by Juanita Thomas, secretary to Congressman Smathers, is incorrect.

In our opinion the bill as finally passed is just as harsh and unjust as the Hartley Bill; the only difference being that its many objectionable features are better covered up by the language used than they were in the case

Closed Shop by 30 Seconds!

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Attorney Joseph M. Jacobs of Chicago said today a union he represents beat the Taft-Hartley Act deadline on closed shop agreements by exactly 30 seconds.

Jacobs is counsel for the American Federation of Labor's United Wallpaper Craftsmen and Workers of North America.

After 10 days of negotiations the union and the Wallpaper Manufacturers of America, a trade association, signed a one-year closed shop contract providing a wage increase of 10 cents an hour.

The union represents 6000 workers in 13 states west of Kansas City.
